Hand surgery

FLICKING FINGER

Typical complaints (as the name suggests) and pain can be remedied with a simple annular ligament release – on an outpatient basis, of course.

DUPUYTREN'S CONTRACTURE

Tough, painless cords in the palm of the hand and increasing crookedness of the fingers are operated on openly, if possible on an outpatient basis.

CARPAL TUNNEL SYNDROME

Finger pain and tingling sensations at night are often caused by a pinched nerve in the wrist. We eliminate them arthroscopically (minimally invasive).

WRIST

Chronic pain or a disc tear after a fall often require surgery to eliminate the pain – arthroscopically and, of course, on an outpatient basis.
